The Dev Corner site is a site for connecting professionals (and enthusiasts) of web development on a local scale. It allows you to participate or create events around your home. The site also offers to consult companies in the digital sector around you, with the aim of finding a job / customers. Finally, like the StackOverFlow site, The Dev Corner allows you to ask a question related to a web problem. Once the question is asked, developers within a radius of Xkm around your home may decide to answer this question.
